The new cloud-based features will be tested out in Ireland, and it is understood the company is currently looking for partners to offer customers with as much of the service as possible. "When I say 'Cloud Standards', I'm referring to a new classification of the different Facebook product services that comprise an app," wrote Facebook in a blog post announcing the service. "This classification is based on where users access data and control their information. This includes the use of a service, where a user
